Settle, Thomas Lee. Papers, 1772 (1820-1900)
1955. Paris, Fauquier Co., Va.

Thomas Lee Settle (12 Feb. 1836-1920) was born in Paris, Fauquier County, Va., the son of Abner H. Settle and Isabelle Lee Hixson. He married in 1860 Louisa Hampton O'Rear (Nov. 3, 1833-1884). His education in local schools was followed by study at R. L.
Brockett's Academy, Alexandria, Va.; at Castleton Medical College (now University of Vermont) in 1856; and at Kentucky School of Medicine at Louisville, Kty., in 1857. He practiced medicine from Dec. 12, 1855 to 1920 in Fauquier, Loudoun, Clarke, and Warren counties, Va., and in Washington, D. C. A friend of Turner Ashby, he entered the C.S.A. in 1861 as a private in the cavalry, and was soon made assistant surgeon. He was reported to be with Ashby at his death in 1862. He served as Surgeon-in-Chief with "Gen. Rev." Robertson, Wm. E. Jones, and Thomas Lafayette Rosser, ending the war as major of the 11th Va. Cavalry. Thus he served during the fighting in the Shenandoah; and captured in the spring of 1865, imprisoned at Fort McHenry, and accused of being a guerilla, he was acquitted to return home in May, 1865.

The Settle papers include those of Captain Robert H. Simpson, 17th Virginia Volunteers, C. S. A. He attended V. M. I. in 1843-44, and after graduation opened an academy in his home town, Front Royal, Warren County, Va. His parents were Samuel Simpson and Mary C. Simpson. In 1859 he was clerk of the 149th Va. Militia. Enlisting in April, 1861, he entered the Army of Northern Virginia, fought in the Peninsular campaign of 1862, and at Fredericksburg in Dec. 1862 in the 17th Va., Kemper's Brigade, Pickett's Division, Longstreet's Corps. He was captured in July 1862, by Federal troops and was sent to Fort Warren, N.Y. Exchanged by Aug. 21, 1862, he served with the 17th Va. until wounded at Drewry's Bluff in May 1864. He died as a result of his wounds June 9, 1864. He was a Virginia farmer with keen interest in crops and stock raising.

The papers of Thomas Lee Settle begin in 1795 with records of land sales, deeds, rent receipts, etc., in Charlestown, Jefferson County, in Cabell County, in the Manor of Leeds, Clarke County, and in Fauquier County, Va. The transactions center in the O'Rear family, the Fergusons, the Timberlakes, the

~~the~~ Nolands, and the Simpsons. . These records continue to the 1890's. Medical correspondence, prescriptions, and bills reveal the life of a country physician who was interested in farming and stock raising. Partnership with Dr. G. H. Hutchison in the '70's is described.

In the Civil War section letters from Fauquier County volunteers begin with First Manassas. 1861, and show the formation of the Army of Northern Virginia, C. S. A., and of Thomas J. Jackson's cavalry command in the Shenandoah.

Capt. Robt. H. Simpson (Va.M.I.) of Front Royal, Va., describes in detail the battles of Chickahominy Swamp, May 12, 1862, and of Fredericksburg, December, 1862. He continues with the 17th Va. Volunteers under General William J. Hardee until his discharge at Greensboro, May 1, 1865. Comments on crops and conditions in Northern Virginia in the Civil War are good. Salt making directions are included for the Civil War period. Family letters to Texas, Missouri, and Tennessee continue until the 1920's. The O'Rear family transactions cover the 19th century. Letters of the Settle children and friends at school in Alexandria, Va., in ^{the} 1880's, at Baltimore, Md. in 1867, and in Lexington, Va., at V.M.I. in 1848. From 1920 the papers deal with letters of Mrs. Pauline Settle Moore, daughter of Thomas L. Settle. There is genealogical data also in this section.

Bills and receipts from 1814-1888 cover land transactions, household receipts, apple brandy making, the business papers of A. H. Settle & Co., merchants, Paris, Va., professional medical bills, horse deal records in the Civil War, and two Confederate Loan Bonds: (1) 17 Oct., 1862, for $500 (Act of Aug. 19, 1861), and (2) 2 Mar., 1863, for $500 (Act of 20 Feb., 1863).

There is a set of medical visiting and account books from 1855-1914 and a miscellaneous collection of literary reviews and medical pamphlets. A Declaration of the Faith and 20, 1863. With descriptions of the country and other particulars intervening on the way." Mr. Timberlake was interested in purchasing a salt works or land. He went from Americus, Ga., to Macon and Savannah, describing the "Lower Part" of Georgia and visiting friends. "Salt Making Business below Savannah" is described in detail from inspections at Thomasville, at Hardy's, at the Starr Salt Works, on to Griffin Ga. The Goose Creek Salt Works are recorded in great detail. Relation of the conscription law to salt workers was explained, as were the tax laws of 1863. Rules for a poor man are given for a small salt works. The rice plantations are also discussed.

The second half deals with "Descriptions of Florida and Health and Other Particulars (useful) as they Happen." Health and agricultural conditions, including sugar making, are recorded as well as the economic state of the Florida and Georgia plantations of 1863.

This journal ends with a synopsis of Adiel Sherwood's 1860 Gazeteer of Georgia.

The Settle papers give a valuable picture of changing economic conditions in the 19th century.

Added 8-8-55. This addition to the main collection of the Settle papers includes a few family and professional letters from the T. E. Settle family, a few legal documents, and some household accounts.

The volumes include the visiting record books of Dr. Settle for 1890 (monthly), 1891, 1894-95, 1894, 1896, and 1905, an account book for the John Horn estate, a Sunday School Record Book, M. E. Church, So., 1884, and miscellaneous scrap and exercise books.

Among the Civil War papers are listed many Confederate camps.

D. H. Hill's Division on Nov. 28, 1862, is described as leading Jackson's Army of the Valley into the Peninsular Campaign against Gen. George Brinton McClellan. Capt. R. H. Simpson of Pickett's Division writes on Dec. 14, 1862, of the Battle of Fredericksburg, listing the wounding of Generals Wm. Dorsey 1431 items and 28 vols. added, 1-9-62. The chief value of the added material lies, not in the family material, but in information about other subjects.

There are a few original poems in the collection.

There are militia orders for 1797 and 1800, and the Va. militia is mentioned again ca. July 12, 1891.

There is not much material dealing with the Civil War and Reconstruction, but Turner Ashby is mentioned on Sept. 7, 1861. There is an undated address about Ashby among the printed material.

Dr Settle received some letters from his nephew, Hugh C. Mantor, an attorney of Taylor, Texas. He writes on July 12, 1894 about a Congressional race between a Democrat and a Populist.

Some papers of 1898 discuss the Spanish-American War. There are letters by a soldier in the 2nd Regt. of Va., discussing camp life in Fla., the Rough Riders, courts-martial, and deserters.

Accompanying a letter postmarked Apr. 17, 1906, is a photograph of the Rev. James Battle

Settle, Thomas Lee

Avirett, formerly chaplain, 7th Regt. of Va. (Ashby's Cav.); and John (Black Hawk), formerly cook of the old regimental mess.

Henry St. George Tucker (1853-1932), in a letter of Apr., 1908, solicits support in his unsuccessful race for the Va. Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

A number of letters to Settle are from his fellow physicians. T. C. Evans, Dean of the U. of Louisville's Medical Dept., discusses his department on Aug. 14, 1909.

On March 20, 1912 Richard Evelyn Byrd, Sr. (1860-1925) writes to Settle asking for assistance in securing a delegation to the Va. Democratic Convention pledged to support the candidacy of Thomas Woodrow Wilson (1856-1924) for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Abraham Lincoln's parentage is discussed at length in a letter of Dec. 20, 1916.

Dr. Settle's daughter, Pauline ("Polly") (born ca. 1870), married Edgar Ackley Moore (d. 1924), M. D. of Paris, Va. As a Lt. in the U. S. Army Medical Reserve Corps from 1917 to 1919, Moore wrote his wife many letters about World War I, his army camp life and experiences in the U. S. and France, and the health of Dr. Settle.

Moore discusses the 29th Div. in a letter postmarked Jan. 19, 1918.

There is a facsimile of a letter by King George V of England attached to a letter of Apr., 1918 by Dr. Moore.

Mo. politics, Republicans, Negroes, and pro-Germans are discussed on May 30.

Some of Dr. Moore's letters describe France, the Letcher family, the Y. M. C. A. and the American National Red Cross (both praised for fine work in France), U. S. casualties, prisoners, hospitals, and physicians. He praises Woodrow Wilson and the Federal Government ca. Aug., 1918.

A number of items deal with Moore's Masonic affiliation, e. g., a letter of Dec. 20, 1918.

Genealogy is discussed in various items, e. g., a letter of Sept. 21, 1924.

Dr. Francis Randall Hagner (1873-1940) writes on Feb. 3, 1925 to Mrs. Moore about the possible connection between Dr. Moore's death and his army service. There is more about this matter later in the collection.

The children of the Confederacy is discussed on Nov. 16, 1926.

The presidential campaign of 1928 is discussed in a letter of Oct. 19 by the Va. State chairman of the Democratic Veterans Organization, Gen. Waller S. Gardner Waller. The views of Democratic candidate Alfred Emanuel Smith I are much favored over those of Republican candidate Herbert Hoover, as well as those of Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge.

Turner Ashby is discussed in a letter of July 10, 1933.

Father Edward Joseph Flanagan (1886-1948) writes on Nov. 24, 1941, about Boys Town.

May 9, 1865, is the date of an amnesty oath signed by Thomas Lee Settle, a former surgeon in the 11th Regt. of Va. Cav. Vols.

A legal document of June 17, 1879, shows that Dr. Settle was a practicing physician, surgeon, and dentist in Fauquier Co., Va.

Settle, Thomas Lee

24

A legal document of Mar. 19, 1886, is signed by a number of Randolphs, as well as by Wm. N. Nelson and Rosewell Page.

There are wills by Dr. Settle and Cornelia Moore and a number of documents dealing with land and the settlement of estates in Va.

There are several lottery tickets made out to Alexander Hite by the Strasburg, Va., School Lottery. Some items deal with the 2nd and 6th Brigs. and the 36th Regt. of Va. Militia during the War of 1812 and U. S. Army prisoners (not prisoners-of-war). An item of July 7, 1861, mentions Turner Ashby, who seems to have been Dr. Settle's commanding officer. A newspaper clipping of Feb. 10, 1897, discusses American history from a Southern viewpoint and blames Northern historians for misrepresenting the facts. One pamphlet tells the story of the San Francisco earthquake of 1906. Another deals with a silver mining scheme in Canada: Julian Hawthorne and Company (1909), by Julian Hawthorne, who in 1913 went to jail for "misusing the mails in connection with some Canadian mining ventures." The volumes include account books, commonplace books, expense books, ledgers, physicians' records, and a stallion service book.

Families mentioned more or less often in this collection include ^{de}Bonham, Burwell, Delaplane, Galt, Glass, Hutchison, Marshall, Meade, Page, Randolph, Shifflett, Spangler, Spengler, Strother, Triplett, Tucker, Washington and Wooten families.

Schools and academies include the Episcopal Female Institute, in Winchester, Va.; the

Settle, Thomas Lee

27

Locust Dale Academy, in Locust Dale, Va.; and the Willow Stream School, in some undisclosed locality.

14 items and 2 vols. added, 11-22-65. The ledger from Dr. Thomas Lee Settle's medical practice at Paris, Virginia, dates from 1897 to 1913.

Another ledger belonged to Dr. Edgar Ackley Moore of Paris, the son-in-law of Dr. Settle. It has accounts for 1905-1907 and miscellaneous entries for 1906-1912. Letters to the Moores appear in the collection by 1911. Dr. Moore was at Paris during the period of the ledger, for names of his patients can be found in Dr. Settle's ledger.

Settle, Thomas Lee

The volume formerly cataloged as Dr. Settle's Medical Diary, Dec. 12, 1855-1858, 1861, 1865-1866, is more accurately described as his Medical Notebook and Account Book, 1855-1866. He originally entitled it as his "Memorandum of Prescriptions, Paris, Dec. 12th, 1855." He used the volume for taking notes on the lectures of a number of professors at the Castleton Medical College in Vermont and at the Kentucky School of Medicine during 1856-1857. The lecturers included the eminent physician, Dr. Middleton Goldsmith who taught at both schools, and other doctors whose names were Woodward, Hardin, Perkins, Marshall, Wright, and another that is unclear. These notes are scattered through the volume and include information about medicine, diseases, and treatments. Settle also used the volume to record his personal accounts and accounts with patients during 1856-1866.

The volume formerly described as Settle's "brief diary as surgeon of the 11th Va. Cavalry, Apr., 1863, to June, 1864," is also more complicated, and it has been recataloged as his Medical Records for 11th Virginia Cavalry, 1863-1865, and Account Book, 1867-1870. Settle first used the volume for a variety of medical records from his duty with the 11th Cavalry, and these records are scattered in several parts of the book. He later used many pages for his accounts, 1867-1870, with his patients.

Numerous letters from young women are in the collection. There are many letters addressed to Pauline Settle, only a few from her. They include letters from students and alumna of the Episcopal Female Seminary at Winchester, Va., beginning in the late 1880s.

Beginning at least in the 1870s there are many letters from patients of Dr. Thomas Settle, some describing symptoms and remedies. Companies selling medicine all communicated with him.

Setzer, Daniel. Papers, 1858-1865.
Rowan Co., N. C. 65 items. Sketch

These are largely letters written in very poor English by Daniel Setzer, who served with the Confed. forces in Va. and N. C., to his wife Susan. He is mainly concerned about the welfare of his family, the acquiring of sufficient food, and other personal matters. He comments not only on the scarcity of food but also on other hardships, and gives the estimates which he has heard of the number of casualties and prisoners taken after the battle of the Wilderness and the siege of Petersburg, and the number of desertions from his company both in Va. and N. C.

There are two letters from Marcus Setzer-- the first one written from Cramford Col., Mo., and the other from Petersburg, Va. in 1865. He, Daniel, and Jacob Setzer were brothers, and they all served in the Confederate Army.

Severinus, Marcus Aurelius. Papers, 1638-1646 or 1647. Naples, Italy. 5 items. Sketch.

Marcus Aurelius Severinus (1580-1656), the famous Italian surgeon and teacher at the University of Naples, where he was professor of anatomy, made the first crude attempt at comparative anatomy. His professional and scientific interests were extensive, bringing him into contact with many prominent scholars of his day and into collision with the Inquisition. He wrote five letters in Latin to Dr. John Houghton of Yarmouth, England, a physician he regarded as second only to William Harvey. The letters refer to his scientific and literary pursuits and to other scholars.

Severinus, Marcus Aurelius.

In the first letter he refers to the wars raging in Europe as causing him to delay publication of his works, as well as to bad feeling in Naples. A controversy had arisen over a defence by Remington of William Harvey against Riolanus. Severinus mentions being offered the chair of surgery at Padua by John Vesling.

The second letter was published in Severinus' famous book De Recondita Abscessum Natura Libra VIII. It refers to a fibrinous coagulum protuding into the heart and ^{the} aorta. Severinus wishes Houghton to consult Harvey about this cardiac snake.

In the third letter Severinus acknowledges receiving Harvey's opinion on the anguiform body in the heart. Houghton, according to this letter had been made physician to the city of Norwich. Severinus also refers to a visit to Naples by Houghton.

After an interval of almost five years, Severinus again writes. He tells Houghton that his letter concerning the cardiac worms has been included in his The Obscure Nature of Abcesses," the edition being published at Frankfort, Germany. Severinus' Zootomia was also in press. He was working on two other books, one on serpents and one on fishes, to which Houghton had contributed.

The fifth letter also refers to the publication of Severinus' works. He mentions Sir George Ent, Prof. Hermann Conring, John Pell, and William Harvey.

Sevier, John. Papers, 1778-1812. Knoxville, Knox Co., Tenn.

This collection consists of the papers of John Sevier, an officer in the American Revolution and first governor of the state of Tennessee.

A summons dated Mar. 14, 1778, is directed by Sevier to the sheriff of Washington Co., N.C., to apprehend and hold for examination Gedion [?] Morris, accused as a debtor by Samuel Smith.

On Feb. 27, 1787, Richard Caswell, Governor

Sevier, John

of N.C., wrote Sevier concerning their land speculation in Tennessee. He also mentioned trials for fraud in the purchase of army supplies, the opposition of the N.C. Assembly to recent Indian treaties, and a new road being built in the mountains.

A directive of July 17, 1800, granted William Lindsay and Zaduch Bowshairs permission to transport slaves from Tennessee to Natchez in the Mississippi Territory.

On Mar. 3, 1805, Hugh Lawson White, Tennessee

Sevier, John

jurist and politician, requested that Gov. Sevier exempt him from sitting as a judge in a case in the Hamilton district of Tenn. White claimed that his personal interests in the case would interfere with his ability to judge the case impartially.

In a letter dated July 22, 1810, Sevier wrote John Overton to ask him to serve as security in a law suit that Sevier was appealing.

Also included in this collection is a copy of a memorial sent in 1812 to the N.C. legislature by Sevier and Isaac Shelby, first governor of the state of Kentucky. The N.C. General Assembly had failed to give Sevier and Shelby the sword and pistols that it had voted them for their services in the Battle of King's Mountain. Sevier and Shelby petitioned the Assembly to honor its commitment to furnish this reward. On Dec. 20, 1812, John Steele, N.C. federalist and from 1796 to 1802 U.S. Comptroller of the Treasury, wrote Sevier informing him that the memorial had been presented to the Assembly and was in committee, but that he could not predict its effects despite the lack of any obvious opposition to it.

Seward, William Henry. Papers, 1857-1899.
Auburn, Cayuga Co., N.Y.

Correspondence of William H. Seward (1801-1872), United States Secretary of State, dealing with diplomatic relations with Portugal during the Civil War and the revolt in Mexico against Maximilian. Correspondents are Franklin Chase, U. S. Consul at Tampico, Mexico and James E. Harvey, U.S. Minister to Portugal.

1 item added, 12-29-56. This is a request to Seward from Hagerstown, Md., on Feb. 12, 1862, that the parole of George Julius, a political prisoner who had been released from Fort Warren, be revoked since he was making himself obnoxious by abusing Union men.

1 item added, 5-30-57: a certificate signed by William Henry Seward on Sept. 13, 1865. It was originally in the Don Preston Peters Collection.

1 item added, 4-18-58: Passport of A. M.

Hancock, U. S. Consul to Malaga, signed by Seward.

2 items added, 6-22-62: Two letters from Seward, Dec. 22, 1857 and Dec. 15, 1862. In the second item, Seward informed James E. Harvey that two of his dispatches from Portugal had been referred to the Secretary of the Navy.

33 items added, 10-6-67: Two originals and thirty-one Xerox copies of Seward's papers. The originals are a letter to Seward from John Buchanan Floyd concerning the discharge of a soldier (May 8, 1858) and one from Seward to

Seward, William Henry

Emanuel Leutze, the noted artist (Nov. 7, 1865).

The Xerox copies are reproductions of papers housed in the Rush Rhees Library at the University of Rochester. They concern chiefly the period preceding the attack on Fort Sumter. A speech by Seward in Jan., 1861, efforts to restore the Union, and the decision to hold Fort Sumter are the principal topics discussed.

There are two versions of a memorandum dated Apr. 1, 1861 and entitled "Some Thoughts for the President's Consideration." To defend his father in the controversy which this memorandum aroused, Frederick William Seward wrote in 1899 a rebuttal which attempts to explain the elder Seward's motives and goals.

Other topics of note are politics in Indiana, North Carolina, and Virginia; the Locofoco and Republican parties; and such leading figures of the time as Samuel P. Chase, Thurlow Weed, and William M. Evarts.

Correspondents include Chase, Weed, John Minor Botts, Robert D. Owen, and Samuel Ward.

9 items added, 12-11-68: Additional Xerox copies of Seward material in the Rush Rhees

Library at the University of Rochester. Correspondents include Seward's wife Frances (Miller) Seward, his son Frederick William, Moses Hicks Grinnell, and Richard Milford Blatchford. The letters are similar in content to those comprising the previous addition of Xerox copies. References are made to Seward's speech, efforts to avoid a civil war, secessionist prospects in Virginia and Maryland, affairs in the Border States, and plans for Lincoln's administration.

In early 1865, Sewell described the destruction in South Carolina. He wrote of hearing the news of Lee's surrender and of Lincoln's death while encamped in Raleigh. He wrote of the march through Richmond and into Washington, DC, where he took part in the Grand Review and visited with his brother Charles, who worked for the Surgeon General. He also

C. M. Sexton, merchant, operated a general store at the village of Valley View. This volume (190 pp.) from his business is the Daybook: 1885, April 1-Oct. 29, 1887. The entries itemize goods by name, quantity, and price. Customers paid with goods and services as well as cash. This Daybook is somewhat unusual, because Sexton totaled his sales each month. He also differentiated among several types of sales including cash sales and sales on account.

The Shattuck Family Papers concern three generations of Boston physicians: George Cheyne Shattuck (1788-1835), George Cheyne Shattuck, Jr. (1813-1893), and Frederick Cheyne Shattuck (1847-1929). George C. Shattuck, Sr., who differentiated between typhus and typhoid fevers, wrote to Mr. Arnold asking him to take books and a letter to his son in Paris in 1838. He mentions his friend, Francis Parkman, the historian. Young George Cheyne Shattuck, Jr., sends a history by Prescott to Madame Arnold in Paris, asking her to pass it on to George Ticknor. An obituary clipping of 1893 gives a summary of the career of Dean G. C. Shattuck, Jr., of the Harvard Medical School. Frederick Cheyne and George Brune Shattuck were sons of G. C. Shattuck, Jr. Both were connected with Harvard Medical School. George B. Shattuck edited the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal. Frederick C. Shattuck, professor of clinical medicine, was writing a history of Harvard Medical School in the mid-nineteen-twenties, and his correspondence concerns this and the raising of funds for a bust of John

Four letters by the Rev. Daniel Shaver, a Protestant Episcopal minister and missionary from New York, N. Y., to other ministers of his denomination about conditions and hardships. On May 26, 1864, he mentions U. S. Gen. F. J. Heron and an incident which occurred two days previously at Matamoros, Mex., across the Rio Grande from Brownsville, Tex., where Shaver is writing. "Gen." Juan Cortina, a Mexican bandit leader, was in possession of the city when a French warship appeared. To the French demand for the surrender of Matamoros, Cortina replied that it could be taken only with hard fighting, whereupon the vessel departed.

Shaver laments from New Orleans on Aug. 3 that the Brownsville citizens and he had been ordered to evacuate the city in advance of the Federal troops. He submits his report on the 10th to the missionary board, detailing his experiences since leaving New York on April 20, complaining of high prices in Brownsville and New Orleans, and criticizing the Roman Catholics in the latter.

On Mar. 26, 1866, Shaver, back in Brownsville doing missionary work, discusses the religious situation there and in Mexico. He likes the Protestant Reformation in Mexico but criticizes "the combined strategy of foreign powers dictated by the Pope of Rome [Pius IX], who holds his grasp tenaciously on that country under the specious feature of the French invasion." The Emperor Maximilian's declaration of religious toleration Shaver regards as a subterfuge, so long as the Catholic Church is the state church. The Protestant Episcopal Church should appoint a bishop in Mexico and otherwise assist the cause of Protestantism there. He has written to Bishop A. C. Coxe about this matter and will write to Bishop Gregg, too. He relates a story told to him by one Longson, formerly a surgeon in both the French Navy and the U. S. Army. Longson, several clergymen, and a Bishop, all presumably Protestants, fleeing "Romish intolerance and persecution, were intercepted by Romish intrigue, and poison administered to him and the Bishop. Dr. Longson recovered but the Bishop died." Imperial and Romish influence, maintains Shaver, drove the refugees from their jobs in Mexico and thence into Brownsville. One regugee minister is teaching a small school in town, while another is superintending the building of a school house a few miles up the Rio Grande. The group needs a printing press, books, Spanish bibles, vestments, etc.

A label on the front cover indicates Malcolm Shaw as the owner of the volume. Corroboration of this information is supplied by the account of William P. Kendall (p. 442) whose Ledger, 1853-1855, contains the same entries in an account (p. 112) for Malcolm Shaw. Both Shaw and Kendall are listed as merchants at Wadesboro in The Southern Business Directory and General Commercial Advertiser (Charleston, 1854), p. 378.

Shaw, Malcolm.

There are settlements and other entries later than 1856, but the ledger is basically for the period, 1852-1856, as the label indicates.

A cash account for Shaw from the late 1850's and early 1860's appears in a cashbook in the W.P. Kendall collection. Kendall may have been administrator of Shaw's estate.

Sheek, Jacob and Jonathan Smith. Papers. 1767-1939. Smith. Grove, Davie co., N. C. 2941 item Sketch.

Letters to members of the Sheek and Smith families in Mocksville and Smith Grove, N. C. from various relatives who had gone to Tenn., Ky., Ind., Ill. and Texas. A letter dated 1825 from Scott co., Ind. speaks of New Lights and United Brethren in that area. Commodity prices are often quoted in the correspondence. A letter of 1840 from Red River co., Tex. mentions forts and Rangers guarding the frontier against Indians.

Sneek, Jacob and Jonathan Smith, Papers. 2

Some of the other subjects treated in these papers are: Mexican War; land prices; cholera along the Miss. in 1849; militia of N. C.; camp meetings; Trinity College (N.C.); secession of N. C.; Peace Convention in Washington, 1861; Fort Sumter; secession of Ala.; experiences and observations of several confederate soldiers, desertion in both Federal and Confederate armies; tax lists of Smith Grove for 1863, giving valuation of real property and slaves and the number of slaves; Andrew Johnson; and the Reconstruction legislature of N. C. in 1868.

Sheek, Jacob and Jonathan Smith. Papers. 3

Quite a few of the letters near the end of the collection are addressed to members of the Clouse family of N. C. from Naylor's of Tex. and Iowa. The printed items include: Advertisements of books and patent medicines; N. C. ballots; a declaration by James B. Weaver that the Republican Party is the great enemy of the people; circulars of the Lockville and Jonesville (N.C.) girls' and boys' schools; and advertisement of Robinson's Circus.

There are numerous bills, receipts, and J. P. summonses and a daybook.

Sheftall, Levi and Mordecai. Papers, 1766-1871. Savannah, Chatham Co., Ga. 201 items and 1 vol. Sketch

The Sheftall family business papers cover activities of three or four generations of Sheftalls, famous Jewish patriots of Savannah during the American Revolution. Mercants Levi and Mordecai (1737-1797) have many business receipts and accounts. Mordecai, as Deputy Commissary General of Issues for the Centinental Army in Ga., is empowered to secure a boat to transport provisions in 1778 by Richard Early household accounts belong to Levi, President of the Hebrew Congregation in Savannah. His wife Parley [?], and Benjamin [son?], are included.

The original marriage settlement of Frances Hart of Charleston, S.C., and Mordecai Sheftall of Savannah, ^{drawn} in 1898 after Mordecai's death. This is the document containing the signature of Governor Charles Pinckney of S.C. In 1802 Sheftall Sheftall (ca.1765-1848), Savannah

The accounts of Levi Sheftall in 1808, as various business men for building materials, cover the activities of the "Dept. of Fortifications" at Fort Jackson, three miles from the city. Levi died ca. 1812.

About 1815 many receipts for payment of legal judgments begin from the practice of includes of the family of Mordecai I, Judith Sheftall also. Dr. Moses Sheftall, grandson of Mordecai I, is practicing in Savannah in 1818.

The family of Levi Sheftall includes Sarah Hannah, and Dr. Abraham Sheftall (d.1845). For his accounts in 1830 as physician at the Marine Hospital, see the Port of Savannah Papers. The marriage settlement of Hannah is drawn up at her marriage in 1827 to Abraham Debyon, with Mordecai and Benjamin representing her interests.

About 1822 Mordecai II joins the law firm of Charlton and Sheftall. Benjamin Sheftall is portrayed shortly after death in 1835 in a memorial by the States Rights Convocation of Chatham County. Mordecai II continues his law practice, becoming a judge by 1849, and active ca. 1849 in the affairs of the Hebrew congregation of Savannah.

The sons of Dr. Abraham are E. Tattnall Sheftall and De La Motte Sheftall.

At the end of the MSS. are a brief of Benjamin Sheftall, dated before 1835, and a receipt book of Mordecai II, 1819-28.

Shell, Helen L. and Mary Virginia. Papers, 1858-1879. Shepherdstown, W. Va. 80 it. Sketch

These papers contain the Civil War letters of U. S. soldiers Abraham V. Stipp, J. V. Richardson, and Henry Cowan to Helen and Mary Virginia Shell, young Unionists with friends on the Maryland side of the Potomac. An older sister, living in New Madrid, Mo., writes (1863-1866) of conditions there. The papers contain interesting Civil War envelopes, letter-heads, and passes through the Union blockade around Shepherdstown.

A. V. Stipp of Martinsburg, a Va. volunteer

in the 3rd Md. regiment, describes the capture of Harper's Ferry, Sept. 13 & 14, 1862, by the C. S. A. Army. He is paroled. He writes of his father's political arrest and of his death in a Richmond prison early in 1863. Stipp is sent to guard the Baltimore and Ohio R. R. in Anne Arundel and Howard counties, Md. He comments on bitterness caused by the Emancipation Proclamation (June 13, 1863), on the hope that U. S. Grant will take Vicksburg, on the movements of the 3rd Md. during the Battle of Gettysburg, on promotions, on the subsiding

Shell, Helen L. and Mary Virginia 3
prejudice against Virginians in the Union Army, and on guerillas in Carroll County before he died at Annapolis late in 1864.

Letters from J. V. Richardson of the Baltimore Light Artillery stationed in Berryville, Va., in May-June, 1863, comment on raids, food, disrupted friendships, and conduct of neighboring farmers.

In 1864 Henry Cowan of Philadelphia, in the depleted 6th Pa. Cavalry, describes Gen. J. A. Early's raids in the Lower Shenandoah and his defeat by Gen. Sheridan.

The sister of Helen and Jennie Shell, Mrs. Isabella Welshaus, writes from New Madrid, Mo., describing guerilla raids, horse stealing, property destruction, high prices, and the strong Confederate sympathy of the region. On Mar. 14, 1866, she writes of a threatened Negro massacre of the whites and of disorderly conduct by Negroes. The letters of this date are social and personal.

SHELLEY, Percy B. and Mary (1814-44) 1857
England Journal and Notes 4 vols.

Typed copy of journals and letters of Percy Bysshe Shelley and Mary Wollstonecraft (Godwin) Shelley, formerly in the Ashley Library of T. J. Wise, but now in the British Museum.

The journal, containing notes of Professor Edward Dowden, opens with an account by Percy B. Shelley (1792-1822) of his flight with Mary Wollstonecraft Godwin (1797-1851), and her half sister, Claire [Clary Mary Jane] Clairmont (1798-1879), from England to the Continent. Interspersed with letters to or from friends, almost daily entries either by Shelley or Mary follow, referring, among other things, to the state of the weather, daily activities, titles of books read, financial affairs of Harriet (Westbrook) Shelley and the Godwin family; Shelley's own financial situation as it related to his father; the births and eventually the deaths of two of the children of Shelley and Mary; Claire Clairmont and Byron; literary works of Shelley; description of French, Swiss, and Italian landscapes; political social, and economic conditions in England and Scotland as shown by the letters of Fannie

SHELLEY -3-

Imlay; Mary Shelley's Frankenstein and its reception by the public; birth of Claire Clairmont's daughter, Allegra, and the mother's controversy with Byron over the child's custody; the Gisborne family and Henry Reveley's experiments in engineering; acquaintance of the Shelleys with Prince Alexander Mavrocordato; publishing difficulties of Shelley; activities and literary efforts of Byron, William Godwin, Thos. Jefferson Hogg, Leigh Hunt, Thomas Love Peacock, and Edward Trelawney; and of the death and burial of Edward E. Williams and Shelley as recounted by Trelawney.

Following Shelley's death and his wife's removal to England with young Percy F. Shelley, the daily entries become meager and letters by and to Mary Wollstonecraft (Godwin) Shelley predominate, with information on the settlement of the Shelley estate and the state of poverty in which Mary W. (Godwin) Shelley, Claire Clairmont, and young Percy Shelley lived until the death of Sir Timothy Shelley; Sir Timothy's opinion of Mary and her own analysis of herself and the loneliness of her life; efforts of

SHELLEY -5-

Claire Clairmont to support herself as a governess in Russia, France, and Italy, her opinion of Byron and of his attitude toward their illegitimate daughter and toward Shelley; Byron and Trelawney's activities in the Greek War for Independence, 1821-29, and Byron's death; Frances Wright including references to Robert Dale Owen and the Nashoba, Tenn, and New Harmony, Indiana, socialistic projects in the U.S. through letters of Frances Wright to Mary W. Shelley; Lord Dillon's "Eccelino" and his death; the old age and death of Wm. Godwin; the schooling of young Percy Shelley at Harrow; the death of Sir Timothy Shelley; the publication of Trelawney's autobiography; biographies of Byron by Thomas Moore and Thomas Medwin; and projected works on Shelley by his widow, and Trelawney, and on William Godwin by Mary W. (Godwin) Shelley.

SHELOR, J. B. Letters. 1860-1891. Pulaski Co
Virginia. 10 pieces. Sketch.

Shelor was a private in the Confederate service. In 1862 he was thought unfit for further army service, and so expected to be discharged, but was not, and continued to serve at least until 1864. At this time he was candidate for Justice of Peace in his home co., but there is no evidence to show whether he was elected over what appeared to be a strong opposition. He was of a very religious temperament, and often expressed anxiety for his wife's welfare. The letters display him as a man of average intelligence, but limited education.

Shepard, James Biddle. Papers. Raleigh,
Wake County, North Carolina

James Biddle Shepard (1815-1871) was the son of William Shepard of New Bern, North Carolina. His brothers, Charles Biddle and William Biddle Shepard, served several terms in Congress. The Shepards were connected by marriage to the Biddle family of Philadelphia and the Bryan and Donnell families of New Bern. The Bryan Family Papers in this department contain materials relative to the Shepard family.

After receiving the A.B. and A.M. degrees from the University of North Carolina, Shepard settled in Raleigh where he practiced law. He was elected to the state senate in 1842 and to the state assembly in 1844, but was defeated in his race for governor in 1846. He also served as United States district attorney in Raleigh. He was married to Frances Teach Donnell and had at least one child, John Robert Donnell Shepard, who lived in France.

The volume comprising this collection contains legal briefs relative to cases appearing before the Edenton District Superior Court. Samuel Johnston and James Iredell, Sr. were involved in a number of the cases as attorneys for the plaintiffs. Litigation concerning the settlement of estates, libel, assault, and unpaid debts are represented in these briefs.

Shepherd, Abraham, Jr. and James H. Papers, 1782-1880. Shepherdstown, W. Va. Sketch.

Deeds and letters, most of the correspondence being to Abraham Shepherd, Jr. and his father, Abraham, Sr., from Jas. H. and Resin D. Shepherd, also sons of Abraham, Sr., who tried their luck in Baltimore and then settled in New Orleans. Abraham, Jr. went to Princeton and then read law in Shepherdstown. There is a letter of introduction for Joseph Cabell Breckinridge from Thos. Worthington, a native of Jefferson Co., Va., who had become a senator from Ohio, to Abraham, Jr. at Princeton.

Some of the other matters treated in the

correspondence are: Abraham, Sr.'s reaction to a Baptist revival he had attended; evils of the Macon Bill No.2, including the adverse effect of its enforcement upon the price of cotton; the desire of one McDonogh, probably John, in 1812 to sell some land and the debt of approximately $50,000 that he and Shepherd Brown owed R.D. Shepherd in 1817; vexation resulting from managing a large number of slaves; and breeding of horses. Brothers Henry and Moses, presumably younger, had joined Rezin D. and James H. Shepherd in Louisiana before 1830. Both then

Shepherd, Abraham, Jr., and James H. 3
married there. Henry was running a sugar plantation for James H. in 1830. The latter died in the 1830's, and ~~had~~ not married.

20 items added 1-3-58. These are business letters of Henry Shepherd, Jr., of New Orleans and Wild Goose Farm, Shepherds-town, W.Va. See chart with the letters.
The James H. Shepherd mentioned in these later letters is probably Henry's first cousin. ~~Uncles~~ Rezin and James H. had been in business before 1807. Henry, Jr., had gone to New Orleans to enter the business in the 1840's, probably because neither uncle had a male heir. Henry, Jr., in-

Shepherd, Abraham, Jr., and James Henry 4
herited the business interests of Uncle Rezin, who finally died in 1865. In April, 1861, Henry, Jr., begins a series of letters to Cousin James H. with enthusiastic comments on secession and scorn for Black Republicans in Virginia. The 1863 letters cover La. in the Civil War, with short notes on Benjamin Butler, Nathaniel P. Banks, and economic conditions. Henry Shepherd married Azemia McLean of New Orleans, daughter of Wm. J.
McLean of New Orleans. The panic of 1873 is reflected in depressed money conditions in 1875.

SHEPHERD, James Edward. Letters. 1892-1907.
Raleigh, North Carolina. 155 pieces. Sketch.

James Edward Shepherd, son of Thomas S. and Ann Eliza (Brown) Shepherd, was born near Suffolk Va., July 26, 1847. Left an orphan at the age of two, he was cared for by his elder brother, William, who moved in 1859 to Murfreesboro, N.C. and became a druggist. Early in 1861, following the example of his brother, James joined the 16th Va. Regiment, but was discharged because of his age after a few months service. He then learned telegraphy and was assigned to duty in W. Va. under General Sam Jones and afterwards at the headquarters of General J. C. Breckenridge.

After the War James became telegraph operator at Wilson, N.C. Thrown on his own resources by the loss of his brother during the War, James began the study of law. He entered the University of N.C., studied under Judge Battle, was admitted to the bar in 1868, and began practice at Wilson. In 1871 he moved to Washington, N.C., and entered a partnership with Thomas Sparrow. The latter was interested and active in politics, and Shepherd was elected to represent Pamlico and Beaufort counties in the Constitutional convention of 1875 and served in the Committee on the Judiciary and was chairman of the Committee on Municipal Corporations.

SHEPHERD, James Edward. Sketch. (3)

He became chairman of the Inferior Court of Beaufort in 1876 and in 1882 was made Judge of the Superior Court. Six years later he was nominated for the position of Justice of the Supreme Court. On the death of Chief Justice Merrimon in 1893 Shepherd was elevated to that position which he occupied with distinction and credit until 1897. His decisions received unqualified commendation among members of the bar. On his return to the bar, Shepherd practiced law in Raleigh.

This collection concerning the period from

SHEPHERD, James Edward. Sketch. (4)

1892 to 1907 contains the legal correspondence of James E. Shepherd. There is much routine correspondence, and the letters show that his opinion was sought after and his judgment respected by other lawyers. There is no continuity in the material, but it would be of supplementary value in a study of James E. Shepherd.

SHEPPARD, James. Letters and Papers. 1830-1899
Hanover County, Virginia. 1539 pieces. Sketch

James (c.1816-1870), son of Joseph M. and Elizabeth (Pollard) Sheppard of Hanover Co., Va., was educated at William and Mary College (1834-1836). His father, a physician and planter, was heavily involved in the Fredericksburg, Richmond, and Petersburg Railroad, and numerous other projects. In order to relieve the financial stress, James undertook the management of his father's farm in Copiah Co., Miss., about 1838. On Sept. 30, 1847, James married Kate, daughter of Adam (President of William and Mary, 1827-1836) and Ann Eliza (Wright) Emple. The young bride tired of plantation life in Miss., and returned to Va. in the spring of 1848, where she remained for a year and a half.

James' younger brother, John William, attended William and Mary in 1840-41. Unable to find a promising opening in business, he read law in the office of Seddon and Morson in Richmond, and from 1847 until 1850 managed the Va. plantations of his father. John William and his father disagreed seriously in business matters and the young man joined his brother in Miss. in 1850. The Sheppards then bought extensive lands in Jefferson Co., Ark. John William died in 1851. About 1853 James moved to Ark., where he was very successful. The tax returns for 1859 show that he owned around 2,000 acres of land and 64 slaves in Ark., which were valued at $45,000. In 1860 James negotiated for the purchase of additional lands valued at $86,000. The correspondence covering the following decade is sparse. The claim filed against the federal government for property destroyed during the war indicates that Sheppard's losses were heavy. After James' death in 1870, his family removed to Richmond.

The collection of papers and letters contains interesting and valuable material. Beyond determining the fact that the Sheppards were Whigs there is no indication that they were actively interested in politics. The accounts of Dr Joseph M. Sheppard and the medical accounts for the Miss. and Ark. plantations reveal something about medical practice of the time. The most valuable letters are those written to Sheppard by the New Orleans and Memphis merchants and those of the overseers written while he was visiting Va. The former indicate prices, the condition of the cotton when received, the amount of profit or loss realized by the planter, the quantity and quality of goods bought by the farmer.

SHEPPARD, James.

Sketch.

(5)

They also show the close relations between the New Orleans cotton market and the situation in England and Europe. The election of Louis Napoleon and the Russo-Turkish War were vitally interesting to Southern planters. Overseers wrote of weather, the health and behavior of the slaves and whether the crops were meeting expectations. The collection is valuable for information about the Sheppard and Emple families, social conditions in Va., and economic and social matters on a Miss. and Ark. plantation prior to the Civil War. The numerous Prices current in this collection are exceptionally valuable in themselves.

Sherman, John. Papers, 1860-1880. Mansfield,
Richland Co., Ohio

This collection contains two letters by John Sherman about politics; and a newspaper clipping of a letter by Jeannette P. Nichols of the Library of Congress about the Sherman collection there.

Sherman writes from Washington, D.C. on Dec. 26, 1860, about Abraham Lincoln, A.H. Stephens, and the political situation. He says that he objects to the addressee's plan of having the presidency alternate between the North and the South. If the right of secession is ever established, our nationality will be destroyed. If the Southern states run from a constitutional victory, a civil war will result. Southerners demand that conservative Republicans surrender their honor, a thing Sherman would never do. Lincoln was barely elected. He must be the President of all the U. S., unless the people acquiesce in peaceable separation, or war will ensue.

On the back of this letter is a note of Dec. 31, 1860, by C. D. Meigs, to whom the letter is addressed. He may be Charles Delucena Meigs (1792-1869), M. D. See D. A. B., XII, 503-504. He explains that he had not proposed the selection of presidents from alternate sections. He had wanted to know if Sherman would offer to accept a nomination of Stephens for 1864.

Sherman writes on June 12, 1880, to W. L. Ferrald about the conduct of the Va. delegates to the Republican National Convention of that year.

1 item added, 3-31-67: A list of officers whose quarters and fuel were commuted (Feb. 28, 1869). Sherman's name heads this list.

1 item added, 1-25-73: Letter dated July 6, 1885, from Sherman to his former aide, Col. John Eaton Tourtellotte. In it he discussed his brother John's role in politics, a family reunion, and a reunion of the Sherman Brigade.

1 item added, 12-3-73: Letter of Mar. 27, 1869, addressed to Benjamin Hazard Field of New York in response to Field sending him a check for $37,000. Sherman says this is the most money he has ever possessed, although he has handled vast sums of money that belonged to others. He mentions that his family will not be in New York until near the end of April.

3 items added, 3-13-75. One item of December 24, 1864, signed by Sherman's aide-de-camp is a pass for a clerk at the headquarters of the Military Division of the Mississippi in Savannah to move freely through the city until further orders. On January 10, 1886, Sherman wrote to William Scoville Case and denied having written any poetry, but revealed an interest in it. In a letter of July 22, 1889, to John Eaton Tourtellotte, Sherman mentioned a recent visit to Denver for a Fourth of July celebration and plans to attend an upcoming meeting of the Army of the Tennessee in Cincinnati, although he was becoming weary of all these annual reunions of Civil War organizations from company right on up to corps.

This is a collection of court and survey records of the Manor of Sheffield in Sussex County, England. The first and third volumes are transcripts of the proceedings of the Courts Baron held in this Manor from 1667 to 1803. These records are in Latin down to 1731 and in English thereafter. The fourth volume is a transcript of a survey of the Manor of Sheffield.

Volume two is an index to the records from 1667 to 1775 in volume one. Volume three from 1775 to 1803 has its own index in the back of the volume. These indices furnish a good indication of the subject matter of the many legal documents and reports in the record books: the registration of a death, orphans committed to guardianship, the inheritance of property, estates and their settlement, the transfer of property by "surrender" and "alienation," land grants from the lord, the admission of new citizens to the manor, the settlement of rents to be paid, alienment by marriage, warrant to

Most of the proceedings deal with the transfer of property.

of a survey which was made between 1571 and 1618 while the manor was owned by Lord Buckhurst. The introduction to the survey includes a brief history of the manor. The survey shows the amount of land belonging to each freeholder and each copyholder by parishes and the amount of tax paid per year. It also describes several larger estates called "demeanes" which are leased by the owner of the manor over a period of years; these brought in most of the revenue. There is a description of the parsonage and glebe lands of the Rectorie of Fletch-

This collection is of particular interest to the student of English history, especially as it relates to the manorial system, to the student of English law as it developed in the Courts Baron, and to the person interested in Sherman's draft of Special Field Order No. 13, sets forth seven rules for trade between the people of the South and the U. S. Army. Trade, he said, would be "confined to barter and sale proportioned to the necessary wants of the Army and of the Inhabitants dependent on us for the nessaries of Life." He names the towns where trade stores will be permitted and gives specific instructions about trading in cotton. His Special Order No. 65, issued at Raleigh, N. C., on Apr. 27, 1865, announces

"a further suspension of hostilities and a final agreement with General Johnston which terminates the war as to the Armies under his command and the country east of the Chattahoochee." His instructions to commanders in his army contain stipulations requiring "scrupulous fidelity" to the terms of the agreement and acts of magnanimity toward the conquered inhabitants.

On Aug. 1, 1865, Sherman writes to a friend he calls Charley that he will help him all he can to secure a place in the Regular Army, the reorganization of which awaits the action of Congress. The last letter, Apr. 23, 1869, is an acceptance by Sherman of the invitation to deliver the commencement address at the U. S. Military Academy the following July. Sherman says he will break his rule of "absolute silence" and deliver the address.

The volume in this collection contains a holograph copy (28 pp.) of Sherman's address to the graduating class at the U. S. Military Academy in July, 1869. He stresses the need for officers to possess the highest ideals of manhood, courage, and dedication to their chosen profession. He gives his view of the requirements for advancement in the U. S. Army, and of how an officer gains the knowledge of men and of how to organize, provision, administer, and lead an army that is essential for success in battle. He covers geographically much of the United States in describing the training grounds for officers, stressing the need for physical as well as moral and mental fitness.

Claude A. Sherwood married Mary E. Holden, a daughter of William Woods Holden. The correspondence comprising this collection is all personal, and the first letter is from W. W. Holden, telling how he and other members of his family who are still at home are faring. Several of the letters are from Sherwood to his wife, and two of hers to him were written in 1889 while she was in the mental hospital in Raleigh. In both letters she expresses her thoughts well and professes a very affectionate feeling toward her family and a strong religious faith.

Sherwood's brother, Bailor R. Sherwood, who had a newspaper and magazine advertising business in Brooklyn, wrote to him on May 27, 1902, about himself and his family. The last two letters in the collection concern the proposed editing by Prof. William K. Boyd of Trinity College of the memoirs of W. W. Holden. His son-in-law, W. R. Henry of Charlotte, expresses Shields, George Howell, Papers. St. Louis, Mo.

George Howell Shields (1842-1924) was an attorney, politician, and jurist in St. Louis. He became a Republican after the Civil War, breaking with his father and brother who remained loyal Democrats. He was elected to the state legislature by Marion County in 1870, but was defeated when he ran for judge of the state supreme court in 1872. He then moved to St. Louis where he formed a law partnership with John Brooks Henderson. His political career also included service as chairman of the state Republican committee (1875-1880) and an appointment as assistant attorney general during the Harrison administration. An assignment as assistant attorney general took him to the Interior Department where he became associated with its secretary John Willock Noble. Noble and Shields later became law partners in St. Louis. Shields served as circuit court justice in Missouri from 1906 to 1912 and from 1914 to 1920.

Shields's papers consist of letters written to him concerning political matters, lawsuits, and his son George. Many of them are written by prominent men, but they have little content. The comments on politics treat no subject in depth. The letters concerning legal matters refer at times to cases involving the rights of bondholders, but they do not reveal much on this source of much of Shields's reputation and fortune. The younger George Shields sought appointments in the diplomatic and armed services, and several letters indicate that his father used his influence in behalf of his son's plans.

Shields apparently achieved the rank of gen-

Shipp, J. E. D. Diary, 1876. Chattahoochee
County, Georgia

John Edgar Dawson Shipp, lawyer and writer, was born on October 4, 1858, in Chattahoochee County, Georgia. He was the son of William Wesley Shipp (1814-1883), a wealthy farmer. J. E. D. Shipp attended Gordon Institute in Barnesville, Georgia, and later graduated from Alabama Polytechnic Institute in 1879. In the early 1880's he was a school principal and lawyer at Cusseta and a representative in the legislature. In 1886 he moved to Americus where he remained except for residence at Cordele, 1889-1893, a town he founded in the former year. At Americus he practiced law and had official positions with the Bank of Americus and the S. A. M. R. R. He was the author of historical and educational articles and wrote Giant Days or the Life and Times of William H. Crawford (1908).

Biographical sketches of Shipp and his father and numerous references to the family appear in Norma Kate Rogers, History of Chattahoochee County, Georgia (Columbus, Ga., 1933). His third name, "Dawson," appears in the entry for his book on Crawford in the printed catalog of the Library of Congress. The Shipps lived in Cusseta District according to the census of 1870.

In 1876 Shipp attended school at the Gordon Institute in Barnesville, Pike County. This diary is primarily concerned with his life at school. The entries (30 pp.) date from March 30 to August 15, 1876.

Shipp traveled to Barnesville by buggy and train in March and recorded his reactions to the journey, Barnesville, and his admittance to the Gordon Institute. He soon became a member of the Lysian Society, and he commented upon two of its debates. His comments on the curriculum and procedure at the school are useful for the early history of this institution. Shipp noted various members of the faculty and described Charles E. Lambdin who was president of the school from 1872 to 1888. Two friends and students whom Shipp wrote about often were John Huguley and James Jack Fitzpatrick. Both boys and girls attended Gordon Institute. Their commencement activities in July, 1876, are noted in some detail. Shipp's comments are often amusing, and they reveal something of the scholastic and social life of himself, his fellow students, and the community.

Shipp, J. E. D.

The following information about the Gordon Institute appears in Dorothy Orr, A History of Education in Georgia (Chapel Hill, 1950), p. 361:

Of the three military schools in the state, Gordon Military College, at Barnesville, is the oldest. It was chartered in 1852 as the Barnesville Male and Female High School and was reorganized in 1872 under the name of Gordon Institute. In 1927 it became a junior college, and in 1933 the state donated to it the plant of the abandoned Industrial College.

Biographical information about Charles E. Lambdin appears in Lucian Lamar Knight, A Standard History of Georgia and Georgians (Chicago, 1917), V, 2621. Lambdin established the Gordon Institute in 1872 and continued as its president until his death in 1888.

Additional information about Shipp is lacking except for what he revealed in his

Although the letters are poorly written they should be valuable for information pertaining to rations, wages, sickness in camp, hospital conditions, etc. There is humor and honesty not commonly found in such letters. Shockley was stationed in Va. during the greater part of the war, but was later transferred to Tennessee near Chattanooga.

Shoemaker, Annie R. Papers. Harrisburg, Dauphin County, Pennsylvania

This collection reveals how the Civil War severed a romance between a Southern man and a Northern woman. On July 24, 1860, Dr. James Mercer Greene in Egypt, Chickasaw County, Mississippi, wrote to Miss Annie R. Shoemaker in Harrisburg, Pa. He spoke of the debilitating heat, the many social affairs, including barbecues, he had attended. It was a custom, he wrote, for the farmers of that area to give a barbecue for the Negroes as a substitute for celebrating July 4. He expressed concern about how she had interpreted the contents of his letter just preceding that one. He makes reference to having settled in Egypt in 1856 after finishing school to practice medicine, and it appears from his letter that he perhaps met her while he was studying in the North and they had been corresponding ever since he came South. There are only three letters of his in the collection. The first of these is a lengthy one of May 21, 1861, in which he attacked the Northern press and the abolitionists and President Lincoln,

Shoemaker, Annie R.

William H. Seward, and Major Robert Anderson for waging war against the South. He tried to convert her to the "truth" as to why the South seceded and why it wished only to be left alone as a separate nation. It is clear from his letter how ready he and other Southerners were to defend their cause. He said that Major Anderson sent his twenty-nine slaves to New Orleans to be sold at the highest bidder, that they were bought by John E. Cocke, that Cocke still owed Anderson some money, but that he had informed him that since he had "adopted such measures as are calculated to make his property insecure, he will not pay those notes, but not to be unfair he proposes to recant the trade, receive back his money and notes and deliver the negroes to their former owner in much better health and spirits than when he received them."

On Sept. 21, 1862, Dr. Greene wrote to Annie from Sharpsburg, Md., where he was attending the wounded, following a battle there. The tone of his letter was very different from the one written soon after the war began. He outlined his service in treating the Confederate wounded of several battles from the First Battle of Manassas until then. He said he had seen so much of "death, crime, shame and despair" that his hair had turned gray and his soul to stone. He added that he saw no end to the war, and it is obvious from the close of his letter that he hoped to hear from her. On Nov. 1, 1862, he wrote to her again, expressing his great desire to hear from her.

Letters of Sept. 3 and Oct. 27, 1861, are from a Union soldier, James H. Larrimon, to Annie Shoemaker. He was encamped near Washington, D. C., and he described the tremendous expanse of tents, life in camp, and the activity and noise of many thousands of soldiers preparing for warfare. He also gave a description of a heating device called a California stove that the soldiers had built into their tents.

Shoemaker, Annie R.

The last letter in the collection was written in 1930 by Annie's son, George D. Evans, a civil and mining engineer in Cartersville, Ga. He mentioned his mother having been engaged to Dr. Greene before the Civil War, her breaking the engagement because he went into the Confederate Army, and that she married his father about two years later.

H. H. Cunningham's Doctors in Gray reveals that eventually Dr. Greene became head of the Confederate hospitals in Macon, Georgia. See also the War of the Rebellion, Series I, for additional information about the military career of Dr. Greene.

Shoemaker, Isaac. Diary, 1864. Warrenton, Miss
78 pp. 34 x 20 cm. Sketch

Shoemaker accepted the invitation of the U. S. Govt. in 1864 to northern men to go South and cultivate cotton on land vacated by southerners, thereby giving labor to the Freedmen and, so it was hoped, teaching them how to take care of themselves. The Govt., for one thing, wanted to be relieved of some of the expense of supporting them. Shoemaker left Cincinnati by boat on Jan. 28, 1864 and arrived at Vicksburg on Feb. 8. He took lodging at a Mr. Quin's, opposite the headquarters of Gen. James B. McPherson. On Feb. 11 he left on a supply boat for Young's Point, ten miles up the river. On the way up they took a side trip up the Yazoo River to Blake's plantation to land supplies for a contraband camp there. (Slaves who escaped to, or were brought within, Union lines were called contrabands.) At Young's Point he met three lady teachers, two of them from Richmond, Iowa, who were teaching in three schools (total of about 300 children) in that area for Negro children. He visited two of the schools and reported on the appearance of the pupils and how the schools were conducted. He rode horseback three miles up the river to visit an area of shallow graves where a great number of soldiers and Negroes who died at Vicksburg were buried.

Shoemaker, Isaac

When he returned to Vicksburg he found that Mr. Quin's house had been taken over by Gen. Hawkins, commander of Negro troops, and the boarders had been turned out. He found a room at Mrs. Lawrence's, "a strong Secesh, but kind pleasant Lady." His next move was to travel up and down the country, looking for a plantation to take over. He described the desolation between Warrenton and Vicksburg and mentioned reports of guerrilla activities along the Miss.

Gen. Hawkins found other quarters, and he moved back to Mr. Quin's on Feb. 28. He met two agents sent to Vicksburg to administer relief to contrabands. They represented the National Freedmen's Aid Society of N. Y. and the Western Sanitary Commission of St. Louis. On Mar. 3 approximately 5000 Negroes arrived at Vicksburg, and he gives an interesting description of them.

About this time he contracted to farm the Adams plantation near Warrenton, and Henry John Denis, of London, Eng., joined him in this enterprise. The transfer of the jurisdiction of abandoned lands from the Treasury Dept. to the military was good news to Shoemaker.

His experiences in operating the plantation were unpleasant and short-lived. Naturally there were continuous problems connected with getting supplies through the lines and operating the plantation. As the military provided insufficient protection for the northern plantation managers against Confederate guerrilla raids, his life was in jeopardy. Often he heard of such operators being killed. When he went to see Gen. Henry W. Slocum, who in Apr., 1864, had been assigned to command the district of Vicksburg, he was given an unpleasant reception. As the military would not promise to provide sufficient protection to northerners (he says they had only a small fraction of the number of Federal troops needed in that district for such protection), he sold out to his partner. After he did, and before he left Vicksburg, guerrillas raided the Adams plantation.

Other things about which he writes are Gen. Banks' Red River expedition, his impressions of the Negroes and the treatment they received at the hands of their "deliverers," great losses suffered by some of the northerners who had invested heavily in livestock and equipment for farming abandoned plantations and then felt forced to give them up for lack of military protection, and approximate number of contrabands along the Miss.

By May 7 he was tired of Vicksburg, was longing for the "pleasant employment of the plantation life," and was undecided as to whether he should remain in the South or go

Shoemaker, Isaac

North. On May 11 he reported having seen a man from Memphis who said that every horse in the town had been pressed into service for an expedition against Gen. Forrest. The diary ends abruptly on May 13 with his reporting the killing of two more northern men on plantations just south of Davis' Bend.

Shoemaker and Berrett was a firm of insurance brokers in Philadelphia. They are listed in the city directories of 1798 and 1799. Berrett is spelled as it appears on the front cover of the manuscript volume rather than as it appears in the directories (Berritt).

The title page reads "Insurance Book for Pragers & Co. 1798." Pragers & Co. were listed as merchants in the city directories. Presumably this volume was kept by Shoemaker and Berrett for their business connected with Pragers & Co.

The "Insurance Book" (71 pp.) contains entries from Aug. 9, 1798, to Jan. 25, 1800. Each entry is for a separate voyage. The goods being shipped were insured, and often the vessel also. The entries included the name of the ship, its master (which can be verified in Lloyd's Register), the origin and destination of the voyage, the amount and cost of the insurance, and many different persons and businesses who were probably the owners of the goods and/or ships.

Shoemaker and Berrett

Philadelphia was often a point of origin, but many other places were also listed. The voyages involved North America, Europe, Latin America, the West Indies, and Asia. Places in Africa were rare. The goods were not identified.

Shorter, Clement King. Papers. London, Eng.

Clement King Shorter (1857-1926), British journalist and author, was editor of The Sphere, 1900-1926, and founded it and The Tatler. He was editor of the Illustrated London News, 1891-1900. His publications included books about the Brontës, Napoleon, and George Borrow, and he edited The Collected Works of George Borrow (1923).

William Morris Colles of the Authors' Syndicate, Society of Authors, and the Copyright Association was the addressee of three letters.

Shorter, Clement King

Those of Jan. 19 and Feb. 3, 1903, concerned Joseph Conrad's story "Falk" that Shorter considered for serialization. On June 24, 1909, Shorter noted his and Colles' recent writing about copyright.

An exchange of letters (copies here) with H.G. Wells in October, 1916, was an expression of their views about Ireland's role in World War I and of Shorter's opinion of the Easter Rebellion and the Irish and English politics that led to it. Shorter also noted his ancestry. An undated letter from Wells has his comments about printing the letter above and others and about the situation in Ireland.

On Nov. 7, 1921, Shorter wrote to Alfred Henry Watson, editor of the Westminster Gazette, about its first issue as a morning newspaper.

Three items concerned the edition of George Borrow's works. Shorter agreed to the use of his copyright matter but reserved the use of it for the edition (May 8, 1922). His letter of Jan. 26, 1923, was about the title for the seventh volume. A clipping of 1923 is a review.

John Gill Shorter(1818-1872) was the son of Gen. Reuben Clarke and Mary Butler (Gill) Shorter, who lived at Monticello, Ga. at the time of his birth. He graduated from Franklin College, now the Univ. of Ga., in 1837, moved to Eufaula, Ala., and after studying law was admitted to the bar. He served in both houses of the legislature, was a judge for nine years, was appointed a commissioner to attend the secession convention in Ga. in 1861, was elected to the lower house of the Confederate Congress, and soon after was elected governor, in which capacity he served until 1863, when he was defeated for reëlection. He was an ardent advocate of secession, and, as governor, was unremitting in his efforts to provide for soldiers' families and for the defense of Mobile. In 1843 he married Mary Jane Battle, daughter of Dr. Cullen and Jane (Lamon) Battle. They had several children, but only one daughter reached adulthood.

The papers consist of John G. Shorter's

Brooks, president of the secession convention in Ala., to Shorter, giving a resolution passed by that convention which directed the commissioners, who had been appointed by the governor of Ala. to attend secession conventions in other states, to present the preamble, ordinance, and resolutions adopted by the Ala. convention to the other conventions for their consideration; and a letter of Shorter to Geo. Crawford, pres. of the Ga. secession convention, which accompanied Shorter's certificate of appointment to that meeting and the preamble, ordinance of secession, and resolutions of the Ala. convention. He states that the first of those resolutions is an invitation to all the slaveholding states to meet in Montgomery on Feb. 4, 1861 to form a new government.

This collection, miscellaneous in character, is composed, for the most part, of letters written to Bettie Shotwell by friends and relatives. The earliest letters are from her schoolmates, then from her brother J. A. Shotwell, a soldier in the Confederate army. The letters dated from 1885 to 1894 were written by Miss Sarah A. Skinner, Bettie's erstwhile schoolteacher, who had returned to her home in Princeton, Mass., ca.

Shuford, George Adams. Papers. Asheville,
Buncombe Co., North Carolina

George Adams Shuford (b. 1895) served North Carolina as a lawyer, jurist, state legislator, and member of Congress. He was educated in the public schools of Asheville, the University of North Carolina, and the Law School of the University of Georgia. In 1932 he married Daphne Brown of Asheville. His public career included service as Representative in the State Legislature, 1945-1947, and U. S. Representative, 1953-1959. After retirement from Congress, he became a Superior Court Judge of North Carolina from which he returned to the practice of law in Asheville.

Shuford's papers consist of 89 boxes of correspondence, reports, speeches, and memoranda from his office in Washington, 1952-1959. The collection is divided into four main categories according to the filing system used in the Congressman's office. Subjects, persons, and places appear throughout all categories.

The Shuford Papers were in filing drawers when originally cataloged. Later the papers were transferred to many smaller archival boxes. Since it was no longer easy to survey the contents, an informal inventory of the files was compiled by a student assistant. See the Inventory of the George Adams Shuford Papers for a survey of the contents of the collection. The collection remains in its original folders with their informal and frequently inconsistent labeling.

The correspondence has two divisions. First, there are letters filed alphabetically by names of correspondents (Boxes 1-21). However, each letter of the alphabet also has one or more folders in which the correspondence is filed only according to the first letter of the name. Secondly, there are letters filed chronologically in folders marked "Letters. Legislation" (Boxes 22-23) and "Letters. General" (Boxes 24-28). There are also several folders of letters of congratulations, recommendations, references, and sympathy (Box 28).

Volumes of guest books and an inaugural invitation (1953) are in Box 28.

Speeches and speech material are in Boxes 29-30.

Subject categories occupy Boxes 31-89. The folders are labeled and are filed according to the words underlined on each label. The labeling system was not consistent, and researchers must survey the subject categories for a given subject as well as the correspondence and speeches. Subjects notable for the quantity of material about them are: agriculture, the armed services, atomic energy, elections, civil rights, civil service, Colorado River, commerce, the Constitution, the Democratic Party, education, electric power utilities, finance, fish and wildlife, foreign relations, highways, Indians, the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, irrigation and reclamation, labor (often under education and labor), the judiciary, mines and mining, politics in North Carolina (especially the 12th congressional district for which there are election records on the precinct level), the Post Office, public lands, refugees, small business, the House Ways and Means Committee, tariffs, taxation, TVA, tobacco, veterans affairs, the Territories Subcommittee (Alaska and Hawaii), and water Resources.

The chronology within folders is frequently out of order. The letters are not entered in the Autograph File.

Shuford, George Adams

2,000 items added, 1-3-68. This addition to the subject categories of the Shuford Papers is notable for files on the Blue Ridge Parkway, the Cherokee Indians, and the Hell's Canyon Legislation.

Walter A. Shupe began his career as an attorney in Richland Co., Ohio. Around 1863, he moved to New York where he became involved in real estate transactions. He lived in Rockland Co., New York, and speaks in a letter of Feb. 22, 1874, of establishing a school, perhaps in that county.

His letters are generally personal in tone and are written to his parents. He speaks of financial conditions in New York, especially in the real estate market. He gives his views

This collection contains personal and business correspondence of several persons, plus several deeds and legal papers. The deeds, land transfers, land surveys, rental contracts all deal with land in Worcester County, Massachusetts. Among the papers are land warrants, court orders concerning the condemnation of and litigation of various holdings. Estate records, tax forms and receipts, wills, mortgages, and papers concerning liquor traffic are among the legal papers also. Court orders appointing various persons as guardians and their records appear throughout the collection. There are several patents, granted to James Smalley, for a cloth folding machine. The machine was also patented in Germany and the German patent is included in the collection. A card containing the registration rates in various European countries is on the back of one of the patents (U.S.) Included are legal papers concerning the transfer of rights to several patents.

Among the personal papers is a letter (Apr., 1868) written by the superintendent of a boarding house for women, describing the life therein; one concerning bankruptcy proceedings of a certain firm in Mass.; a letter (Aug. 15, 1873) by Benjamin F. Butler which had been printed in a newspaper and cut out and appears in the collection mounted on light blue paper. There is a report to the school board on the schools which includes wages of teachers and absence records; household bills and accounts; papers concerning personal debts; sale of livestock; labor contract; one volume containing wages of employees from 1883 to 1890; official appointment as not-

The remaining three volumes in the collection consist of an autograph book containing name cards and invitations, a small book with household accounts, and a school book containing essays and extracts from letters.

The volume containing wages of employees is Elliot & Hall's Time Book, 1883-1890. Elliot & Hall was a manufacturer of folding and measuring machines used in the textile industry.

Sickles, Daniel Edgar. Papers, 1856-1912.
New York, N. Y. 22 items & 1 vol. Sketch.

These papers are telegrams covering the month of Jan. 1866. Sickles* was then military governor of North and South Carolina, and the telegrams deal with the reconstruction of courts and other civil and military matters. (14 items)

8 items added 5-28-52. These consist of letters from Sickles to Col. Wm. A. Seaver, who was for some years on the editorial staff of Harper's Monthly, and a letter to Henry J. Raymond. In a letter of Jan. 17,

*(1825-1914)

Sickles, Daniel Edgar

2

1856 he gives his opinion on the Kansas-Nebraska question, revealing at the same time loyalty to Pres. Buchanan's admin. At Christmas of 1860 he wrote to Seaver about legislative matters, mentioning several members of Congress, and his depression over the national situation. He said he thought the Southern Pacific R.R. project was the best peace measure yet proposed. There are several letters written to Seaver from Charleston in 1867, and they deal principally with material published in Harper's. He does describe the celebration of Mayor's Day in that city. He calls, no doubt facetiously, both Seaver and Thomas Nast tramps.

The letter to Henry J. Raymond of the New York Times was written in June, 1867, in defense of Sickles's administration of the Carolinas from 1865 to 1867.

1 vol. added, 3-20-58: A letterpress book containing mainly copies of personal and business letters by and to Sickles.

Sickles, Daniel Edgar

Letterpress Book:

The first item is an address delivered by Sickles on July 1, 1899 (p. 369) at the dedication of an equestrian statue of U. S. General John Fulton Reynolds who was killed on July 1, 1863 in the Battle of Gettysburg. The gallantry of the Union forces, as is to be expected, loses nothing from Sickles's description of it.

In a number of his letters Sickles re-lives the Battle of Gettysburg, especially its second day, on which he was wounded, and which he considers decisive. He makes much of Gen. James Longstreet's opinion that the IIIrd U. S. Army Corps, commanded by Sickles, deserves credit for the Union victory there, because it repulsed the Confederate attack on the 2nd, (e.g., Sickles' letter of Sept. 30, 1904). (p. 273)

A number of his letters deal with the Medal of Honor Legion, which he commanded in 1902; and with the New York Monuments Commission for the Battlefields of Gettysburg and Chattanooga, of which he was sometime chairman.

While a number of his letters deal with routine business items, like bills, his commercial interests were extensive. He was one of the largest stockholders in the North American Rubber Co. (letter of May 29, 1903)^{p. 25} His exact relationship to the Sickles Real Estate Development Co. is not stated, although a number of letters by Sickles deal with real estate in New York City and its environs. In 1904 he writes several letters about a bankruptcy case in Washington, D.C. A few letters deal with electric clock companies, from one of which he lost some money.

In some letters he mentions his personal affairs, including his health. He lost his right leg at Gettysburg. In his declining years he had difficulty in seeing.

Sickles takes a keen interest in a variety of subjects, especially business, politics, and military and veterans' affairs, but his political letters are the best. He served at times on the New York City Board of Aldermen, and writes about the politics of the city, as well as the state and the nation. He frequently writes letters to various politicians, recommending Civil War veterans and their sons for various types of political preferment. (p. 5)

On Nov. 19, 1902, Sickles mentions Morgan M. Snowden, formerly of the 55th Regt. ²Mass. Colored Vols. and the 120th Regt. ²N. Y. Inf. He enlisted in the first organization and served under Sickles' command in the second.

On Dec. 30, 1902^(p. 14) Sickles opines that U. S. General Joseph Hooker was the most distinguished person from Massachusetts in the Union Army during the Civil War.

On Jan. 30, 1903^(p. 21) Sickles sent a contribution to the Home for Needy Confederate Women in Richmond, Va. In this and other ways he works for North-South Reconciliation.

On July 25, 1903^(p. 34), echoing Longstreet's view, Sickles writes that Gen. R. E. Lee "lost his characteristic equipoise at Gettysburg. He was overconfident; he underestimated his adversary; he overestimated himself and his army."

On Aug. 20, 1903 (p. 41) Sickles writes, "Enclosed in this letter you will find a copy of one from Lieut. General Longstreet of the Confederate Army, in which you will observe he gives me credit for our success in the battle of Gettysburg."

On Nov. 9, 1903 (p. 70) Sickles notes the hostility toward President Roosevelt by leading capitalists and adds, "It is not at all improbable that from this source the Treasury of Tammany Hall found means to augment its unparalleled resources in the recent canvass."

On Nov. 16, 1903 (p. 256) Sickles writes to Roosevelt, discussing his Panama policy.

On Nov. 17, 1903 (p. 72) Sickles discusses an incident of Feb. 22, 1861, pertaining to President James Buchanan; former President John Tyler, then President of the Peace Congress; Joseph Holt, Secretary of War; and a military parade ordered by Gen. Winfield Scott on George Washington's Birthday.

On Feb. 23, 1904 (p. 116) Sickles discusses Russo-American relations. In 1854 Sickles was Sec. of the U. S. Legation in London; James Buchanan was U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain; and Sir George William Frederick Villiers was British Secretary for Foreign Affairs. Buchanan told Lord Clarendon that Russia was "the only power in Europe that would treat the United States fairly and impartially in any contention with another European power." Sickles says that Buchanan's remark remained true until recent years.

On Mar. 3, 1904 (p. 127) Sickles comments on Roosevelt's administration.

Sickles writes to Roosevelt about politics on Mar. 15, 1904 (p. 134).

On the 19th (p. 136) Sickles says that on the third day of Gettysburg Gen. W. S. Hancock urged Gen. G. G. Meade to attack at once; and that Gen. E. P. Alexander, Longstreet's Chief of Artillery, told him "that if such an attack had been made on Lee's right flank by our disposable force of 25,000 men, the rebellion would have ended in an hour."

Gen. O. O. Howard writes to Sickles on June 5, 1904 (p. 172) mentioning a train trip they had recently taken with Roosevelt, and the President and Sickles' remarks about pensions for disabled veterans, with particular reference to the age of 62 set by Roosevelt in his Executive Order No. 78.

Sickles replies, defending the Order as being good and consonant with similar orders of Cleveland and McKinley, except for different age requirements.

On June 6, 1904 (p. 160) Sickles writes to Roosevelt, discussing the Battle of Gettysburg, Confederate Gens. J. B. Gordon and Longstreet, and Union Gen. Grant, and requesting that Roosevelt send condolences to Longstreet's widow, as he had to the family of the late J. B. Gordon, and also to subscribe to Mrs. Longstreet's memoir of her husband.

On the 14th (p. 164) Sickles writes to Mrs. Longstreet, accepting her request that he write and introduction to her forthcoming memoir, and discussing his visit in 1892 to Ga. and ^{with} Longstreet. This letter sheds light on North-South relations at this time and quotes Longstreet's remarks about Sickles' role in the Battle of Gettysburg.

On June 16, 1904 (p. 178) Sickles writes to Gen. O. O. Howard, saying that Roosevelt has written a very graceful and kind letter to Mrs. Longstreet and has subscribed for a copy of her book. On the same day (p. 180) Sickles writes to the President about pensions and Mrs. Longstreet.

Although Sickles was a member of the N. Y. City Board of Alderman, his letters say little about his activities in ~~this~~ regard. On June 18, 1904 (p. 181) he writes to the President about the Board's meeting in reference to the loss of the excursion steamboat General Slocum.

Sickles discusses his genealogy on July 26th (p. 215). His family name was originally Van Sick-kle.

On Aug. 7, 1904 (p. 226) Sickles writes to Roosevelt advising him not to send the U. S.

Fleet to Turkey as a "big stick" diplomacy move.

A letter of Aug. 11, 1904 (p. 228) throws light upon the effective work being done by Gen. Leonard Wood in the Philippine Islands. Sickles mentions Paul Morton, U. S. Secretary of the Navy.

On the 16th (p. 234) Sickles writes to Roosevelt about the anthracite coal strike; Gen. John Moulder Wilson, one of the strike commissioners appointed by the President; and former Judge Alton B. Parker, Democratic presidential candidate.

On the 18th August (p. 243) Sickles writes to Roosevelt, expressing his fondness for the so-called "right to work" (strikebreaking) principle and for veterans' preferment for public employment. Bryanism he considers to be as much a factor in the 1904 presidential campaign as in those of 1896 and 1900. Opines Sickles, "Although Bryan is not a candidate, now, he was the controlling force at the St. Louis convention, and would control a democratic congress if one were elected."

On the 19th August (p. 247) Sickles writes that his father, Geo. Garrett Sickles, contributed $1,000 toward buying arms and war munitions for Texas. He also mentions Gens. Samuel Houston, Mirabeau Bonaparte Lamar, Memucan Hunt, and Santa Anna.

On the 30th August (p. 260) Sickles writes to Roosevelt, denouncing the statement of W. H. Taft, Gov. of the P. I., that the U. S. intends to give up these Islands as soon as they are capable of self-government.

On Aug. 30, 1904 (p. 262) Roosevelt replies to Sickles' letter of Aug. 30.

On Sept. 27 (p. 272) Sickles discusses politics in N. Y. and in the U. S., deprecating political preferment for judges, and mentioning the following New Yorkers: former Chief Justice A. B. Parker of the Court of Appeals of N. Y.; former Gov. David Bennett Hill of N. Y.; Lt. Gov. Frank Wayland Higgins of N. Y.; and Justices Edward Montgomery Cullen, Wm. Jay Gaynor, and D-Cady Herrick, all of the Supreme Court of N. Y.

On Nov. 5 (p. 292) Sickles writes to Roosevelt about the latter's reply to A. B. Parker, Democratic nominee for the presidency.

On Nov. 11, 1904 (p. 293) Sickles congratulates the President upon his reelection and makes a prediction which is interesting in the light of Bryan's defeat four years thence: "The Democratic party will revert to the radical tendencies of 1896 and 1900, and will go further than ever in that direction in 1908."

On the 16th November (p. 298) he again writes to the President, suggesting that trusts and corporations contributed to the Parker campaign.

On Jan. 3, 1905 (p. 331) Sickles writes to the President, requesting political preferment for his son, Stanton Sickles.

On June 10 (p. 359) Sickles writes to Roosevelt, congratulating him upon his diplomatic handling of the Russo-Japanese War settlement.

On June 11 (p. 364) Sickles praises Btry. B, First Regt. 7 N. Y. Art., for being the first unit to fire upon "Stonewall" Jackson's troops in the Battle of Chancellorsville (1863). In the Battle of Gettysburg the same battery contributed greatly toward checking Longstreet's assault until reinforcements arrived.

On Sept. 1 (p. 367) Sickles contrasts the Gettysburg addresses of Abraham Lincoln and Edward Everett, to the enhancement of the former.

On May 1 and 14, 1906 (pp. 383, 384) Sickles writes to Elihu Root, recommending his son, Stanton Sickles, for political preferment.

On Oct. 13 (p. 395) Sickles writes to Chas.

Evans Hughes, discussing fraud, William Randolph Hearst, Sr., and the Democratic Party.

On Mar. 15, 1907 (p. 401) Sickles writes to William S. Jackson, Attorney Gen. of N. Y. [?], stating his opinion of a proposed merger of the Bell and Independent Telephone companies.

Sickles' letter of Mar. 19, 1907 (p. 404) is one of his finest. He defends Gen. G. B. McClellan's leadership of the Army of the Potomac in 1861-2, including the Peninsula Campaign (1862). He says that McClellan rather than Sheridan should have been the first president of the Society of the Army of the Potomac. He pro-pronounces Gen. Lee's W. Va. campaign of 1861 a failure.

Sickles, Daniel Edgar

Sickles in his letter of Apr. 15, 1907 (p. 408) discusses a dilemma of his. He cannot do justice to McClellan's campaigns without attacking his (Sickles') lifelong friend, Edwin M. Stanton.

Gen. Joseph Hooker is defended by Sickles in various letters as he is in one dated Aug. 1, 1908 (p. 416).

Washington and Lincoln are contrasted by Sickles on Feb. 18, 1909 (p. 422).

Among the numerous things for which Sickles claims credit is the informal nomination of Grant for President in N. H. in Feb., 1868, some months before the Republican National Convention nominated him. See two letters of Aug. 20, 1909 (pp. 428, 429).

In a letter of Oct. 7, 1909 (p. 433) U. S. Minister to Spain Sickles writes of his negotiations with the Spanish Prime Minister in 1869 for the acquisition of Cuba for two hundred million dollars. He points out the attitude of Hamilton Fish, Grant, and the rest of the cabinet toward the negotiations.

On Nov. 1, 1909 (p. 435) Sickles further discusses Spanish-American relations referring to reparations for Spain's executing Americans without trial.

On Dec. 8 (p. 440) Sickles discusses U. S. relations with Nicaragua, Hawaii, and Cuba.

He writes on the 16th December (p. 442) to the Duke of Chartres, expressing profound regret upon the death of his daughter and recalling with pleasure the service of the Duke and his brother, the Count of Paris, with the Army of the Potomac in 1861-1862.

On the 28th December(p. 445) Sickles recalls his days as military governor of the Carolinas (1866-1867). He asserts that he received high praise from Gen. Grant; Govs. Jas. L. Orr and Andrew G. Magrath of S. C.; and Gov. Jonathan Worth of N. C.

On July 22, 1910 (p. 459) Gov. Charles E. Hughes of N. Y. writes unofficially to Sickles, inviting him to be the N. Y. representative in the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg Commission. Sickles writes his acceptance on the 24th (p. 460). 471

On Aug. 24 (pp. 470) Sickles writes to Jos. Pulitzer and Wm. R. Hearst, Sr., urging them to support Wm. Sulzer for Gov. of N. Y.

On Nov. 11 (p. 482) Sickles praises James Buchanan very highly.

On Dec. 16 (p. 503) Sickles writes to Gen. G. A. Goodale about the Battle of Gettysburg, claiming that Gens. Grant and Sheridan had praised his (Sickles') tactics there.

On Apr. 20, 1912 (p. 528) Sickles writes that he prefers Hughes to Roosevelt or Taft for the Republican presidential nomination.

There are dozens of prominent people mentioned other than those already discussed in the sketch, but Sickles' comments on them are not considered significant enough for these people to be listed in the subject index.

James Buren Sidbury (1886-1967) was a pioneer in the field of pediatrics. After graduating from Trinity College, now Duke University, and Columbia University, he began practicing as a children's specialist in 1915 in Wilmington, N. C., and in 1920 established The Babies' Hospital at Wrightsville Sound. He was a trustee of Duke University and endowed a professorship in pediatrics in its School of Medicine.

His collection consists of miscellaneous

Joseph H. Siddall is apparently the J. H. Siddall listed in the Philadelphia city directories of 1825 and 1829 where he is described as a conveyancer and surveyor, respectively.

The collection consists of two letters of 1823 and 1826 from his father James Siddall, Sr., in Pittsburgh and also of two brief manuscripts describing trips on the rivers between Pittsburgh and New Orleans. According to remarks in

Siddall, Joseph H.

both letters, James Siddall worked in some capacity on river steamboats, perhaps as a clerk.

James Siddall's letters of Sept. 23, 1823, and Feb. 8, 1826, concern personal and family matters. A son William also worked on a steamboat, and there were relatives in England (1826). The first and fourth pages of the letter of 1823 bear a pencilled draft of a letter to an English uncle, apparently written by Joseph Siddall. The letter concerns family matters and contains a reference to their being emigrants from England many years earlier.

Two unsigned manuscripts of two pages each are brief descriptions of trips from Pittsburgh to New Orleans (Dec., 1823, to Jan., 1824) and from New Orleans to Pittsburgh (Jan.-Feb., 1824). The latter manuscript begins with a few sentences about Mr. Lacroix's plantation below New Orleans. The writer was apparently James Siddall. The handwriting is not as even as in his letters, but the formation of many letters is the same.

Henry Marlow Sidney (d. 1897), British army officer, served with the 2nd Duke of Cornwall's Light Infantry. He participated in the Sudan expeditions of 1884-1885 and 1896-1898. In August, 1897, he was killed in the battle at Abu Hamed. At that time he was a captain (temporary major). Sidney was noted in Winston S. (London, 1899), I, 196, 332. Biographical information may also be found in Philip Sidney, Abou-Hamed: Being Some Account of the Battle . . . With a Memoir of Major Sidney (London, 1901).

Sidney's diary dates from January 1 to July 15, 1885. The entries are brief references to his activities and to the movements of the troops with whom he was serving. He was not involved in major engagements. On January 1 the river force was moving southward on the Nile River between Dongola and Debbeh in the Sudan. It continued as far as Hebba near Berber where the mission was to punish the tribe that had killed Colonel John Stewart, General Gordon's second in command. Operations were suspended for the remainder of the hot season, and the troops returned northward at the end of February. Sidney visited the site of Stewart's death and reported the finding of some of his papers, cards, and diary (Feb. 20-21).

Sidney became ill, went to Cairo, and

In a letter dated April 6, 1846, is mention and comment on the Tirrell murder case in which Rufus Choate won an acquittal with one of his greatest defenses.

The extensive accounts in this ledger indicate that Martin Sigman operated an inn, tavern, livery stable, and freight hauling business. He apparently owned slaves, for there are numerous entries for their hiring.

Sigman's name and initials appear on the inside and outside of the front cover, but the spelling of the last name is not clear. Identification is provided by tracing Sigman's account for Arnold and Cooley (p. 167),

Letters. 1816-1875

Franklin, Macon C., N.C. Sketch. 67 pieces

This collection involves two generations of the Siler family and two of the Chipman family but does not explain the connection of the two families. The Silers of German ancestry were living in western North Carolina as early as 1816. On Feb., 8, 1820 Jacob Siler married Matilda Swain. Jacob Siler within a few years became a man of some wealth and local prominence and a slaveholder. In 1838 he was a member of the North Carolina legislature. Albert Siler, who is prominent in the later correspondence,

Siler, Albert

was probably a nephew of Jacob Siler.

In 1852 the Chipman family was living in Montreal, Canada where R. Chipman was probably in the lumber business. His children, after the death of his wife, were under the care of an aunt named Amanda who later lived in Grand Rapids, Michigan. How R. Chipman and his family transferred their residence to Franklin, N.C., is not revealed by the correspondence, but this must have occurred between 1850 and 1855, for in 1856 Josey Chipman married Albert Siler. In 1860

Siler, Albert

they had four children, named Nettie, Fanny, Ralph, and Henry. In the summer of 1862 Albert Siler joined the Confederate army, where he was a captain in the 39th Regiment, N.C. troops. He was stationed at various places in East Tenn. but saw no actual fighting of consequence. The letters do not reveal how long he remained in the Confederate service. His war letters refer chiefly to troop movements and to illness, wounds, and deaths of men whom he knew.

The letters following the war show R. Chipman back in Montreal, and communication resumed with other members of the Chipman family. At the close of the correspondence R. Chipman was trying to give financial aid to his children including the purchase of a farm in N. C. for Josey and Albert Siler. One of his daughters, Fanny, who had married a man named Beal, in N.C., had died prior to 1867. R. Chipman, who was born in 1790 was still living in 1870.

Siler, Albert

The collection is too incomplete to provide a satisfactory picture of the families whom it concerns. It adds something to a knowledge of mountain character and its small quota to a picture of the Confederate soldier.

country, a circumstance which she deplored greatly. Her brothers, Thomas, "Bol", and John found the West a more agreeable place, and were engaged in planting in Macon and Russell counties. John later entered the mercantile business in Ala., and during the Civil War served in the Confederate army. The two or three war letters are of some interest, and in 1866 and 1867 there are interesting comments on conditions in Alabama.

On the whole the letters are inconsequential, but there are useful comments on crops, economic conditions, social life, development of the West, and occasionally on politics.

Simmons, Dawn Pepita (Langley-Hall). Papers.
Charleston, S. C.

This collection was originally cataloged under the name of Gordon Langley Hall, author of Charleston, S. C., formerly of Cranbrook, Kent, England. Since it was acquired Hall has undergone a series of operations at Johns Hopkins University to change his sex. Following the change she adopted the name of Dawn Pepita Langley-Hall. Later she married John Paul Simmons.

The first part of the collection is almost entirely letters from the mother of Mrs. Simmons who is Marjorie Hall (Ticehurst) Copper. For many years she was on the household staff of Sir Harold Nicolson of Sissinghurst Castle in Cranbrook. Sir Harold Nicolson's wife, the poet and novelist Victoria Mary Sackville-West, bought the old castle of Sissinghurst and employed Jack (Go to following card.)

Copper, Marjorie Hall Copper's husband, as a "jack-of-all-trades." He was in her employment for almost forty years, until her death in June of 1962. During these years, his wife occupied various positions on the household staff. Upon Lady Nicolson's death her property was divided among Sir Harold and their two sons, Nigel and Lionel Benedict (Ben). Nigel Nicolson inherited the castle, Sir Harold the South Cottage, and Ben the farm house in Bettenham. The Coppers continued on the household staff, although Jack Copper's declining health made his services somewhat minimal.

Marjorie Copper's letters to her son concern mostly family news and local gossip. References are made throughout to Sir Harold and Lady Nicolson, and their two sons. There is a letter of May 9, 1962, from Lady Nicolson to Gordon Langley Hall in which she gives him some information of her background. This he had requested. A letter from Marjorie Copper (June 3, 1962), discusses Lady Nicolson's death and the distribution of her property. Continuous letters after this refer to Sir Harold's failing health and his visits to Sissinghurst; differences between the two sons, Nigel and Ben (June 4, 1963), Nigel's family affairs; and Nigel's writings and work with the United Nations (1964, Nov. 24, and 1966, April 28).

Mrs. Copper occasionally refers to affairs in the United States. Beginning in 1963 she makes continual comments on the racial trouble which seemed to be brewing in America. Specific instances referred to were demonstrations in N.C. (1963, July 12); riots in Charleston (1963, July 17); and the bombing of a Negro Church in South Carolina (1963, Oct. 2). Other events mentioned include President John F. Kennedy's assassination (1963, Nov. 24), Hall's book on Jacqueline Kennedy (1964, Apr. 24; Nov. 24), Lyndon B. Johnson's inauguration and Winston Churchill's funeral (1965, Jan. 31).

30 items added, 12-2-68: Personal letters from relatives and clippings. Late in 1967, treatments were begun to change Hall's sex. These treatments were performed at the Gender Identity Clinic at Johns Hopkins University. Upon the conclusion of this program, Gordon Langley Hall adopted the name Dawn Pepita Langley-Hall. References to the change of sex are made in several of the letters, and interviews with Miss Hall concerning the transformation are included in the clippings dated October and November, 1968. A forthcoming marriage is also announced in these clippings.

Bern, North Carolina

F. M. Simmons (1854-1940) was born in N. C., educated in private schools and Trinity College (Duke University), admitted to the bar in 1875, and practiced law during his earlier years. He was elected to Congress (1887-1889), and subsequently served on the Democratic state and national committees. In 1901 he was elected to the U. S. Senate, and continued in that body until 1931.

This large collection covers his official correspondence over a considerable portion of his public life, but is most voluminous following 1920. Much of it is routine matters such as oppress senators during recent years, but there are also letters of a more important nature, including autographs of almost every public man of importance for the last twenty-five years. An efficient secretarial staff handled the senator's correspondence and left it in very good condition. Despite the volume of the collection as it stands, there are obviously large gaps for the period prior to 1918.

Richard L. Watson, Jr. reported on 6-7-56 that the Simmons family seems agreed as to the following spelling of the names of F. M. Simmons and his father: Furnifold McLendel and Furnifold Green Simmons.

Simms, Robert Nirwana. Papers. Raleigh, Wake County, North Carolina

Robert Nirwana Simms was a prominent attorney and Baptist layman in Raleigh, North Carolina. He was born in 1876 in Guyandotte, W. Va., the son of a Baptist minister. A graduate of Wake Forest College, Simms began practicing law in 1897 in Raleigh, where his father was minister at the Tabernacle Baptist Church. He soon became active in civic affairs and state politics. He served one term (1901-1902) in the North Carolina legislature and in 1904 he was a Democratic presidential elector. In 1908 he and Walter Clark, Jr., served as campaign managers for Ashley Horne, an unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. He was president of the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce in 1923 and a trustee of Meredith College for many years. He also served as division counsel for the Norfolk and Southern Railroad Co. and general counsel for the Raleigh and Southport Railway Co.

Simms, Robert Nirwana

After 1900 Simms became widely known throughout North and South Carolina for his work in the Baptist Church. In 1900 he organized the Simms Baraca Class in the Tabernacle Baptist Church Sunday School. One of the first proponents and organizers of the Baraca movement in the South, Simms was for many years in great demand as a speaker and a lecturer for church groups. In 1900 he was an officer in the North Carolina Baptist Sunday School Chautauqua; in 1901, first vice president of the World Wide Baraca Union; and in 1903 and 1904, president of the North Carolina State Sunday School Association. He wrote many pamphlets and articles for the Young Men's Baraca Union of America. For several years he was a member of the Baptist State Board of Missions and of the executive committee of the Baptist Young People's Union.

Biographical information on Simms is in North Carolina: Rebuilding an Ancient Commonwealth (Chicago and New York, 1928), III, 499-500.

The collection includes boxes of letters,

writings, legal papers, printed material, and letter books. The correspondence, which is concentrated in the years 1893 to 1915, deals almost exclusively with state politics and Simms' religious activities. The most important political correspondence is in 1908 and concerns Simms' work as campaign chairman for Ashley Horne. The letters mention publicity, speaking engagements, campaign finances, and the Democratic nominating convention. There are also two separate folders of Horne campaign material, including drafts of the candidate's speeches, political advertising, financial statements, and detailed records of the membership, organization, and balloting in the state Democratic convention. After 1908, the political correspondence is largely routine but contains mention of practically every North Carolina gubernatorial campaign through 1944. There are many letters from Simms' close friend Josiah W. Bailey and from numerous other North Carolina politicians, 1900-1949. In the box of printed material are many broadsides, brochures, and pamphlets relating to North Carolina politics.

Much of the correspondence on religious matters is before 1915 and deals extensively with Simms' activities as a Baraca teacher, organizer, and publicizer. Many letters are invitations for Simms to speak at church gatherings and commencements. There are several letters from Marshall Hudson, president of the Baraca Union of America. This correspondence is useful in showing the origin and development of the Baraca Sunday School movement in North Carolina. The box of printed material also contains pamphlets on Baraca work. Many of Simms' speeches, in the box of writings, were delivered at Sunday School or church meetings.

Among other matters mentioned in the correspondence are: the international peace movement in North Carolina (1908), the development of railroads in N. C. (1904-1908), Meredith College (1929-1933), and the prohibition movement in N. C. (1903-1920).

The file of legal papers includes one case (1904-1920) involving Charles N. Hunter, a Raleigh Negro prominent for his efforts to advance Negro education in North Carolina. There are also three letter books of the Douglass and Simms law firm, numbered 2, 3, and 5, covering the years 1900-1905 and dealing with routine legal matters. There is one box of material gathered by Simms in 1939 and 1940 when he was chairman of a committee to draft a retirement insurance plan for North Carolina

Simms, William Gilmore. Letters 1838-1870
Charleston, S. C. Sketch 55 ~~37~~ pieces

W. G. Simms (1806-1870) was born, educated and spent his life in (or near) Charleston. Though trained for the law, he turned to literature and wrote prolifically until his death. He is best known for his novels. He was interested also in such journals as the Southern Literary Messenger and the Southern Quarterly Review.

These letters deal with personal, literary, and political matters. There is much regarding the publication of Simms' books and mention of many projected works. Also Ms. copy of a poem, "Forest Worship".

One letter added Feb. 18, 1944, concerns Simms' newly-established journal, "The Southern and Western Monthly Magazine and Review." He requests of the publishing house of D. Appleton & Co. reviewer's copies of their most recent publications so that he may review them for the new periodical.

Added 4-19-51. 2 photostats, one from library of A. S. Salley, Columbia; the other from the Tucker-Coleman Papers, Colonial Williamsburg, Sept, 6, 1849 ^{July 24, 1859}

12 items added 1-5-58. The first is a fragmentary letter of ca. 1848 which may have been addressed to James Henry Hammond. It discusses the Mexican War.

There is an undated letter by Simms to Israel Keech Tefft. There are eleven fragmentary letters by Simms, six of them to Major Marcus Claudius Marcellus Hammond. In 1864 he mentions Abraham Lincoln, G. B. McClellan, and U. S. politics. In an undated letter he mentions James Ryder Randall. Another undated
